

LITERARY NOTES.

A new volume of selections from the diaries of Thoreau will soon be brought out by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. It is to be entitled "Winter," and will contain Thoreau's observations for many snowy seasons.

Concerning that encounter on a railway journey between Inspector Byrnes and the beautiful and fascinating criminal heroine of Julian Hawthorne's "Great Bank Robbery" the London Academy says that "it is as good as anything in Gaborian."

Miss Allegro Eggleston, the artist-daughter of Dr. Edward Eggleston, is illustrating for "The Century" her father's forthcoming story "Gray's Gray."

There are some curious details of court life in the reign of George III, to be found in the lately published journals of Mrs. Papendick, who was Assistant Keeper of the Wardrobe and Reader to Queen Charlotte. A pretty picture of the heartless and stingy little German Queen she gives. Charlotte parred everything down to the final penny, and didn't always pay that. When Thomas Lawrence, then undergoing his early struggles, was commanded to paint her portrait, he asked for a last sitting to give a finish to the picture. He was refused; and he was never paid for his labor. Mrs. Papendick narrates some hitherto untold incidents of the King's illness.

Mr. McKenzie not only refreshes himself with a summer tour over the countries we all want to know about but brings his journeys home and entertains his friends with a characteristic book.

PUBLISH TODAY.

GUATEMALA, THE LAND OF THE QUETZAL.

By WILLIAM E. BRIGHAM. With 26 full-page and numerous text illustrations. $50.

Mr. Brigham's work on Guatemala is fresh, interesting, substantial and important. It covers a wide range—the people, with their habits and customs, the architecture of the present and the past, the climate, products, natural scenery, mineral resources and the flora and fauna of this interesting and continental old land, and represents her truly. "John Halifax" was emphatically Mrs. Craig's best book—the healthiest and sincerest in spite of the abnormally perfect hero—but it is doubtful if even this will be read by another generation.

SETH'S BROTHER'S WIFE.

A Study of Life in Greater New York. By HAROLD FREEBIE. 12mo, $1.25.

A rural community in Northern New York is the scene of Mr. Freebie's novel, which has attracted much favorable comment while appearing serially in Scribner's Magazine.
The characters are drawn with vigor, an ingenious plot and a abundance of incidents giving the story movement and vitality.

FAMILIAR STUDIES OF MEN AND BOOKS.
By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. 12mo, $1.25.

These essays are a variety of subjects—Hugo, Victorian poetry, English literature, marked by the same increases of style, vigor and variety of thought that characterizes the author's other works.

leather, tree calf, or flexible calf, $3.50.

"It is a rhythmic romance, or love story in metre of the greatest delicacy and beauty, and its scenes of great enjoyment and pleasure are marked by the same increases of style, vigor and variety of thought that characterizes the author's other works."

MISS JAMES B. BALDWIN. With 12 full-page illustrations by Howard Pyle. Square 12mo, $2.

The ancient Greek myths and legends are the material out of which Professor Baldwin has constructed a consecutive narrative full of interest for young people, and of real literary value. Mr. Pyle's illustrations are drawn with his accustomed spirit, and are in perfect harmony with the beauty of the story.
